Project Guidelines for Post Graduate Diploma in Business Administration

1. Understanding the significance of a Project Report

Many learners underestimate the significance of a project report and make a mistake of thinking that excellent marks can be scored by simply producing a good lay-out.

This is fundamentally not the case as many projects are graded well below their potential because of an indifferent or poor write-up. In order to acquire the right balance, a learner should consider the aim behind making a good project.

It provides the opportunity for a learner to demonstrate independence and originality, to plan and organize the project work, and to put into practice some of the techniques a learner has been taught throughout the program.

2. Meaning of a Project

A project can be defined as a temporary endeavour undertaken to achieve a particular aim or it is a study of factual information for comprehending and applying the various concepts of the course into practice. In simple words, a project can be understood as mentioned under:

- It is a practice of verification or demonstration of concepts or hypotheses or processes learnt.
- It is also a technique of self-learning, learning by doing. It has a practical value.
- The purpose of project is not to generalize but to study the situation with a practical orientation.

3. Application of Research Methodology to Project Work

SCDL allows learners to take up any topic of their interest and choice for project work.

However, learners should bear in mind that project topic should be relevant in their area of specialization. For example, the learners of PGDBA (Marketing) should carry out their project work only in the functional areas of Marketing. Although an illustrative list of the topics is being given at the end in order to give an idea about project topics or titles of the project, learners are nevertheless advised not to restrict themselves only to the topics specified. If the learner submits a project which is not relevant to his/her specialization, then the project will not be evaluated and the learner will be treated as fail. SCDL gives the liberty to the student to choose any topic relevant to a learner's (Primary) specialization.

Steps in Research Process are as follows:

- Defining the problem and Project Objectives
- Designing Project Plan
- Collecting Data
- Analysis of Data
- Interpretation and reporting the findings in Soft copy

4. Project Guide

Projects can be guided by any Post Graduate degree holder with / without a Doctorate Degree working in an academic institution (preferably teaching MBA / Management course) or a person working in the managerial cadre in any industrial / business / IT organization. Learners must take advice and suggestions from their guides from time to time.

5. Technical specifications of the project report
